In exchange, individuals will often pledge to donate more money to charitable causes and spread the words of their faith in return.

On the other hand, however, land-based pharmacies are definitely not something that a cost-conscious buyer is looking for.